The police officers interviewed Mr Bob Rocky, 25 years old, mobile phones sales manager, bachelor, who stated the ponce officers interested in the building at the Lover Road main junction for the last two years. The rent is USD 200 a month, plus utilities. To reduce the expenses, he shares the building with his friend Emanuel Gibson. On 01 October 2011, he came home early, at 18:00 hrs. He was tired. That's why he had his dinner, watched TV and went to bed around 22:00 hrs. He did not know what time it was when he was awakened by a noise. He heard some heavy blows to the front door and some angry voices in the hall. He got up from his bed, and in that moment the door to his room opened and two masked guys, one tall and one short rushed into. The tall guy kicked him in the stomach, and the short one asked, "Where's your money?" Mr Rocky answered that he had no cash with him. Then the tall guy grabbed 4 mobile phones which Mr Rocky brought home from his office, and they left the room. Few minutes later he heard some shots, he did not remember how many. According to Mr Rocky, he sustained no hard injuries.

In his interview to the police Mr Emanuel Gibson, 26, unemployed, divorced, stated that on 01 October 2011, he came home rather later, approximately at 23:00. There was an interesting movie on TV that night. The incident happened just after the movie was over, that's why he remembered the exact time -01:00 hrs. He heard that somebody knocked on the door. He asked who was there, but there was no reply. At that moment somebody kicked the door. The plywood-made door crushed down, and several masked men entered the hall. One of them, a very tall guy, who looked like a real basketball player, made a sign for two of them to head for Bob's room. He also ordered two others to search the room. Then the "basketball player" came up to Mr Gibson and demanded he give all the cash he had. Mr Gibson replied that he had been out of work for three months and he had no money. Then the robbers took his laptop. There was no violence against him. They were leaving the house when a neighbour, James, appeared in the front door. He had a machete in his hand. The "basketball player" took a gun out from his coat and fired twice. James fell down and the criminals ran out of the building. A few minutes later other neighbours came and rendered him medical aid.

Mr Joshua Smuggle, 45, housekeeper, who lives close to the place of the incident, stated to the police that night, around 01:00 hrs. He was ready to go to bed when he heard firearm shots. He came to the window and saw some males leaving the neighbour's house. He understood that something had happened. He went out of home and saw his another neighbour, James, lying on the floor in a pool of blood."

This protection was extended to the Indian, Inuit, and Métis peoples; the three groups generally thought to comprise the aboriginal generally thought to comprise the aboriginal population in Canada. But this decision has placed on provincial courts the enormous burden of interpreting and hought to constitutional language into courts the enormous burden of interpreting and translating the necessarily general constitutional language into specific rulings. The result has been inconsistent specific rulings. The result has been inconsistent recognition and establishment of aboriginal rights, despite the continued efforts of aboriginal peoples to raise in Aboriginal rights in Canada are defined by the constitution as aboriginal peoples' rights to ownership of land and its resources, the inherent right of aboriginal and its resources, the inherent right of aboriginal societies to self-government, and the right to legal recognition of indigenous customs. But difficulties arise in a societies to self-government, and the right to legal recognition of indigenous customs. But difficulties arise in a societies to self-government, and the right to legal recognition of indigenous customs. But difficulties arise in applying these broadly conceived rights. For example, while affirming legal recognition of indigenous customs applying these broadly conceived rights. affirming legal recognition of indigenous customs might appear straightforward, the exact legal meaning of "indigenous" is extremely difficult to interpret. "indigenous" is extremely difficult to interpret. The intent of the constitutional protection is to recognize only long-standing traditional customs, not those of long-standing traditional customs, not those of recent origin; provincial courts, therefore, require aboriginal peoples to provide legal documentation that peoples to provide legal documentation that any customs they seek to protect were practiced sufficiently long ago—a criterion defined in practice to mean prior to the establishment of British sovereignty over the specific territory. However, this requirement makes it difficult for aboriginal societies, which often relied on oral tradition rather than written records, to support their claims.

Furthermore, even if aboriginal peoples are successful in convincing the courts that specific rights should be recognized, it is frequently difficult to determine exactly what these rights amount to. Consider aboriginal land claims. Even when aboriginal ownership of specific lands is fully established, there remains the problem of interpreting the meaning of that "ownership." In a 1984 case in Ontario, an aboriginal group claimed that its property rights should be interpreted as full ownership in the contemporary sense of private property, which allows for the sale of the land or its resources. But the provincial court instead ruled that the law had previously recognized only the aboriginal right to use the land and therefore granted property rights so minimal as to allow only the bare survival of the community. Here, the provincial court's ruling was excessively conservative in its assessment of the current law. Regrettably, it appears that this group will not be successful unless it is able to move its case from the provincial courts into the Supreme Court of Canada, which will be, one hopes, more insistent upon a satisfactory application of the constitutional reforms."

- 54) Which of the following most accurately states the passage's main point?
 - (A) The overly conservative rulings of Canada's provincial courts have been a barrier to constitutional reforms intended to protect aboriginal rights
 - (B) The overwhelming burden placed on provincial courts of interpreting constitutional language in Canada has halted efforts by aboriginal peoples to gain full ownership of land.
 - (C) Constitutional language aimed at protecting aboriginal rights in Canada has so far left the protection of these rights uncertain due to the difficult task of interpreting this language.
 - (D) Efforts by aboriginal rights advocates to uphold constitutional reforms in Canada may be more successful if heard by the Supreme Court rather than by the provincial courts
- 55) Does the passage provide evidence to suggest that the author would be most likely to assent to one of the following proposals?
 - (A) Aboriginal peoples in Canada should not be answerable to the federal laws of Canada
 - (B) Oral tradition should sometimes be considered legal documentation of certain indigenous customs
 - (C) Aboriginal communities should be granted full protection of all of their customs
 - (D) The language of the Canadian constitution should more carefully delineate the instances to which reforms apply.
 - 56) What number of groups comprise aboriginal population?
